

Amanda Graves is a senior music therapy student at Sam Houston State University and will be finishing classes in the spring of 2012. She is Historian for the Music Therapy Organization at her school, and has appreciated both national and regional conferences. Amanda loves effective communication, and is excited to be learning the simple strength of communicating with music.